

Official says Chabahar Port, hub of int'l trade

Tehran, Aug 10, IRNA – Deputy Governor of Sistan-Baluchestan province, southeastern Iran, Rahmdel Bameri told IRNA that the port with access to open seas can play the fastest means of supplying essential goods of the country

Referring to the launch of shipping lines between Chabahar and India, the official said that the direct contact of traders with Indian ships can reduce the costs and faster traffic of goods

Chabahar port, as one of the main ports in the southern Iran, enjoys a strategic position as it lies to the north of the Gulf of Oman and has access to the international waters, the he said

On the other hand, the port's proximity to Afghanistan, Pakistan and the Central Asia, as well as the its connection to the national railway network in near future will play a big role in the International North-South Transport Corridor (INSTC)," the governor said
